

'Reading at Home'

Guides for Parents

'Reading at Home', two simple notebook size guides, developed by an Assistant Principal with over 20 years experience teaching junior classes including reading recovery, that are an essential set to accompany the reading books sent home with children, providing parents with easy tips and steps to follow as they support their child's reading development through the early stages at school, while reinforcing classroom teaching practices.

- ◆ Book 1 - begins the journey from their child's first days at school when bringing home a book to share is a regular event. Each page gives practical tips on consolidating what is being taught in the classroom.
- ◆ Book 2 - follows on once their child has moved on from the early stage and offers tips on how to help children approach new words and ensure they understand the meaning of the story.

Parents today are busier than ever with many demands on their time but they still want to help their children with their learning. These guides are the ideal tool, quick to read, simple to follow and handy to refer back to when necessary.

The books have been well received by parents and teachers in over 200 schools and are available to purchase for $9.00 per set.

At first your child will just tell or say the story by memory. This is great! This is the first step of learning to read: it means he/she understands that reading is telling a story.

Discuss the story in a way that will help your child connect with the experiences in the book. Try and ask some hard questions about the story to help your child really think about what he/she is reading.
